

Children are introduced to the idea of peace when:

- they experience true silence
- they make up with friends after a row
- they see people working together and burying their differences-
- they hear about war and peace in their history lessons or on TV
- they hear about wars and conflicts still going on today